The Stafford Act and other laws allow FEMA to collect information to determine eligibility and provide assistance as a result of a Presidentially declared disaster.

PRINCIPAL PURPOSE(S): FEMA collects and maintains your information in order to respond to any inquiries or appeals regarding financial assistance eligibility decisions under a Presidentially declared disaster. Additionally, FEMA may review your information for quality assurance purposes to assess FEMA's disaster assistance customer service.

ROUTINE USE(S): FEMA may share the personal information of U.S. citizens and lawful permanent residents contained in their disaster assistance files outside of FEMA as generally permitted under 5 U.S.C. § 552a(b) of the Privacy Act of 1974, as amended, and as detailed in the following Privacy Impact Assessment: DHS/FEMA/PIA-049 Individual Assistance (IA) Program (Jan. 11, 2018). If you disagree with FEMA's decision regarding disaster assistance, you have the right to appeal. To appeal, you need to send FEMA documents that show why you need assistance that FEMA hasn't approved, or if you need more money than FEMA gave you. Documents you can send include receipts, bills, repair estimates, contractor estimates, property titles, or deeds, that show why you need more help. You can use this form to give FEMA additional information that we should consider or to clarify anything in the documents that helps FEMA understand why the documents you sent show that you need assistance. Please read the decision letter FEMA sent to you for examples of the documents you should send to appeal FEMA's decision. You may also call FEMA's Helpline at 1-800-621-3362 for more information.

Note: This form is optional. You can write and sign your own explanation to send with your documents, or you can just send the documents that explain why you need more assistance without an additional explanation.
